The Need

It is all about tax simplification. How do we make it easier for businesses to do business in our cities and state?

Currently, the number of forms and redundant data business need to provide to each city they do business in, and the lack of a centralized source for information about getting a license and paying taxes, makes it difficult for customers to navigate the process and get things done in a timely manner. At the same time, cities must have enough revenue in order to sustain the levels of services needed by these same businesses, and the flexibility to locally manage the rules is necessary to tailor the revenue to the need. These two realities have come together to form the requirements needed to create a common license and tax portal. The Portal will enable participating cities and businesses to better connect with each other and spend less time filling out forms and paying taxes.

The new multi-city Portal will:

- Provide one place for license registration and tax filing where businesses will be able to:
  - Register and file at one time for any enrolled city
  - Determine what is required to register and then complete their registrations
- Be built as a customer service website where businesses will be able to
  - Enter information only once, no matter in how many jurisdictions the business performs work
  - Find answers easily, contextually and consistently
  - Support multiple languages for high-level interactions
  - Save time for businesses which leads to lower costs
  - Provide customers with a guided approach to register a business and file taxes, so a business no longer has to spend time searching for information
- Support the Cities Model Ordinance by clearly showing the applicable tax similarities (common ordinances) and differences across the member cities
  - Enable additional cities to be part of the Portal web site
- Pass information to the appropriate city or state agency system-of-record rather than store business identifiable data

With these goals in mind, Bellevue, Bellingham, Everett, Seattle, and Tacoma have been working together for more than a year to document the functional and technical environment for building the License and Tax Portal. This document is the culmination of that work and lays out the business functional requirements to successfully provide the common License and Tax Portal.

The Process

In 2011, five cities; Bellevue, Bellingham, Everett, Seattle, and Tacoma, came together to determine whether it was feasible, from a uniformity and financial viability perspective, to build a common License and Tax Portal in order to simplify licensing and tax filing requirements for businesses.

Following interviews with city staff and facilitated meetings, the answer was clearly "yes." Cost estimates were developed to make certain that the price would not be prohibitive. Additional work was identified that would to bring city practices more in line with each other, define the oversight needs, and provide more specificity about the requirements.

In April of 2012, work began to formally gather requirements for the Portal from the participating cities, and reviewed requirements with business groups and associations as well as the Washington State Department of Revenue (DOR). The Feasibility Study from 2011 formed the scope of the requirements and deeper interviews and facilitated sessions with city staff were conducted. Early findings were reviewed with stakeholders including business associations, individual businesses that do business in multiple cities, and DOR.

Focus groups were then conducted to review the requirements with the business community and other interested business groups. Each focus group was conducted online in order to increase participation. Multiple businesses, both large and small, participated in validating the requirements and giving us feedback on how to improve the Portal web site navigation. Adjustments to the requirements will continue to be made based on the feedback received from the primary users of the Portal.

In addition to validating the functional requirements, we validated the technical approaches and techniques to leverage the cities' existing systems. A more detailed cost estimate of "off-the-shelf" software, hardware, application development, and additional related costs to implement the Portal was also documented.

The Project Organization

The Requirements project was part of a larger program of the Multi-city License and Tax Portal that includes other projects designed to fully develop the Portal.

In addition to the work on the Requirements themselves, effort has been expended during this time-frame on communications and outreach, including focus groups, governmental liaison with the state and additional cities, and work to determine an appropriate organizational structure to support the Portal and the enrolled cities. The Governmental Liaison track is focused on working with governmental organizations to understand their goals and concerns and to keep the overall project in synch with the governmental community.

The Governance track of the project is designing the organizational structure that will be in place to support the cities once the Portal is implemented. This structure will include things such as the ability to add cities and functions to the portal, financial obligations of the partner cities, and the technical support needed to deal with changes to the portal. This track is also creating the potential structure to support the project to implement the portal.

In addition to the overall governance structure of the portal, there are a number of issues that will be addressed in the Request for Proposal (RFP). A number of items were identified through the Requirements process and can be found in Appendix A – Governance Items from Facilitation Sessions.

The Communications track is validating that the information provided is accurate and represents the project in a manner that is understandable to both the business community and the governmental entities involved in the project. This track is also conducting focus groups within the business community to validate the overall goals and specific requirements.

The Quality Assurance track validates that the Requirements provide the necessary information for the project to move forward and for a sound decision to be made on the off the shelf software to be selected to support the Portal.

Each of these tracks has made substantial progress over the last six months. To support the eventual success of the Portal, these tracks need to continue through the RFP process and into the Implementation Phase.

The Design Assumptions

During the Functional Requirements sessions, assumptions were made regarding the probable design for the Portal.

This was necessary in order to discuss the functional requirements in enough detail to reach consensus. This effort did not document design but the business functions that the Portal needs to support in order to achieve the goals of the cities. Detailed design will be part of any effort to create the Portal.

1. General Requirements—There are a number of requirements that are general in nature and apply across the Portal. The Portal will:
   - A. Enable the user to select only those functions they need to perform
   - B. Enable the user to select a combination of cities with which they need to interact and will have only the relevant forms, data fields, and tasks exposed
   - C. Enable back office operations at each city to track tax payments, license payments, and provide reporting
   - D. Enable businesses to send e-mails from the Portal with questions to specific cities
   - E. Not require change to any city's current processing of license and tax functions
   - F. Support access by common browsers
   - G. Highlight required data fields for the user
   - H. Preclude a user from proceeding to the next page until they have provided all required data
   - I. Provide a bookmark function in the event the user needs to leave the session before completing the function
   - J. Allow the user to print a completed new or renewed license for any city that is able to complete the transaction immediately
   - K. Provide the ability for the user to print a subsequently approved or renewed business license in a later session for those cities that are not able to approve a license in real time
   - L. Provide access to view approved business licenses according to the business account permissions
   - M. Provide real time status on transactions (as of the city system of record's update process)
   - N. Provide reminders of due dates for license renewals and tax filings due through e-mail notification for all cities
   - O. Proactively notify the user of the necessary steps to complete a transaction and take the user to the appropriate web page for processing if there are prerequisites for a transaction that the user is attempting to complete
   - P. Allow electronic documents, such as floor plans, to be uploaded, stored, and displayed as part of a Portal transaction at the time of the transaction
   - Q. Verify address information using United States Postal Service address standards
   - R. Be flexibly designed to support future technology and process integration with state and other governmental systems and processes
   - S. Use an extensible architecture to support future needs such as receipt of other taxes and fees

2. Single interface—The primary design point of the Portal is one unified interface that provides the ability to apply for business licenses, pay fees and taxes owed, and make updates to business information from one place for multiple cities. The Portal will:
   A. Enable the user to enter information once regardless of the number of cities involved
   B. Provide a consolidated input mechanism for all data required for the requested transaction
   C. Use the Washington State Unified Business Identifier (UBI) as the unique identifier to tie the cities and the business together
   D. Determine the appropriate cities for a transaction based on the user's entry of UBI and other relevant data
   E. Provide information proactively to the business regarding details of licenses required by business types and locations of work
   F. Not require any changes to a city's organizational structure based on their use of the Portal
   G. Use an interface with DOR to leverage any participating city's current discovery file.
3. Guided registration and filings—In support of the goal of simplifying how to do business in Washington, the Portal will provide optional contextual, guided questions and answers that allow users to register and file taxes quickly and efficiently without having to spend time searching for additional information. This guided approach minimizes impact of any variances of city business registration and taxes:
   A. Users will be able to walk through a single set of questions that encompass all participating cities and will guide the user as applicable city and business activities are defined
   B. Information previously provided by users from prior filings and business registrations will be used when appropriate, with only "what's changed" questions to ensure that information is current and not entered more than once
   C. Users will be able to choose whether to walk through a guided set of questions, go straight to data entry, or upload data using a standard upload template
   D. Users will have the ability to drill deeper into questions to get contextual help as well as to locate any city specific rules or definitions
   E. The Portal will provide the users an opportunity to review their answers when completing the guided questions for tax filing and business registration that are submitted to the relevant cities at the same time
   F. The Portal will enable a user to start a transaction, leave the Portal, and return to complete the transaction without having to start over
   G. The Portal will parse the data entered by the user and perform tax calculations and provide tax code implications to limit calculation errors and assist the user
   H. Users will not be required to understand various city rules or ordinances as the Portal will provide them with easy contextual means to drill more deeply into detailed information; from simple descriptive help, to detailed help, and into the actual city ordinances and the state Revised Code of Washington (RCWs)

4. Tax calculations and payment—The team believes that providing tax calculations to the filer through the Portal will make it easier for businesses to file tax returns. To provide the tax calculation, the user will enter the required revenue or gross receipts data. The Portal will calculate the tax owed and display the amount for payment. The Portal will send the data to the appropriate city's processing center:
   A. If tax data is entered for multiple cities, a total will be provided for payment
   B. If the payment total includes multiple cities, a breakdown of taxes owed by city will be provided for the financial records of the business
   C. Online payment will be accepted
      i. Electronic payment is the preferred payment method
      ii. All cities will accept the same payment types and cards
   D. After the user makes a payment, the Portal will automatically disburse funds to the appropriate cities
   E. Taxpayers will be able to collect the changed information for an amended return and provide the information to appropriate cities for review and validation
   F. Taxpayers will be able to make payments on bills received for underpayment for any enrolled city through the Portal
5. Business licenses—The user will indicate the cities for which a business license is requested. The Portal will provide data entry fields and directions for all of the data required for the licenses:
   A. Users will be able to apply for business licenses for any one or combination of the enrolled cities
   B. No data will be requested more than once regardless of the number of cities involved
   C. Data entered for any city will be leveraged for any other applicable city
   D. The use of the North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) code and key word search will allow the Portal to determine if regulatory licenses are required for the specific business in the specific cities requested
   E. If a regulatory license is required for a specific city, data will be collected and instructions will be provided to the user regarding the completion of the regulatory license application
   F. The Portal will enable the user to make changes to their business information
   G. The Portal will support the renewal of business licenses as required by each city

The Functional Requirements

Following is a high-level overview of the Functional Requirements for the Multi-city Licensing and Tax Portal.

These requirements were gathered during interviews with individual city subject matter experts and then validated in a facilitated session with the cities. The Use Cases take the requirements to the next level of detail, follow the high-level requirements, and can be found in the separate Use Case document. The Taxonomy (license and tax data definitions) are found in Appendix E.

OVERVIEW

The overarching goal of the Multi-city Licensing and Tax Portal is to create a simple way to support local business license issuance, updates, and license renewals, and local tax reporting and payments for businesses in one place. The current perceived issue is a customer service problem. It is difficult today for a business to determine when, where, and how to register a business and when, where, and how to pay the taxes due. This is true whether the business operates in one or multiple cities, and is true whether the business is large or small. The Portal is designed to simplify this process for business and thus improve customer service.

The Portal will provide "one-stop-shopping" for city business licensing and tax filing, and provide interactive guidance to businesses in all of the participating cities. It will contain easy to locate, simple information regarding how to register a business in Washington State and in each or any of the cities supported by the Portal. No longer will a business have to search for multiple web sites and dig for information to figure out how to be compliant.

As businesses are more easily able to determine their licensing and filing requirements, cities expect to see an increase in accuracy and compliance. The Portal will provide a question and answer approach to determine what licenses may be required and in what cities a business needs to file, regardless of their physical location. A business will only have to enter its demographic information and a description of its business once. The Portal, referring to a NAICS table, will provide a suggestion of the appropriate code for the business type in that city. A question will be asked by the Portal regarding in which cities work will be performed. Based on these answers, regulatory licenses may be required by the Portal and other city licenses may be required. The applicant will be guided to the appropriate licenses and cities as required.

When taxes are due, a similar approach is followed. The business or representative logs into its account, enters business activity data, and the Portal displays the calculated tax due information from the cities in which business has been conducted. Context sensitive help will guide the user to take credits available and calculate the actual tax liability for each city. A single payment is made electronically and then payments are disbursed to each city. One payment transaction is processed and the detail breakdown is provided for the business from the Portal and on its associated financial statement from its financial institution.

Sensitive data is not held by the Portal but passed on to the individual city's processing system. The Portal retains only enough data for the user to access information and provide assistance, as needed, to the user. One telephone number is available that will route the call to the appropriate city for access to detailed assistance from a specific city staff member.

Understanding the needs of small businesses and portable businesses, multiple devices will be supported including computers, tablets, as well as cellular and traditional telephones. Walk-in customers or businesses without access to a computer will be able to access the Portal at any public computer in libraries or city Halls. Ease of access, information, and transactions is the goal of the Multi-city Licensing and Tax Portal.

While there is a design assumption that no city needs to change their current processes in order to implement the Portal, that assumption does not preclude the cities from continuing to streamline their processes. The focus groups provide an interesting insight into the challenges currently faced by businesses in dealing with the license and tax processes of each city. Continuing these focus groups to refine individual city processes even prior to the implementation of the Portal may be a good way to continue collaboration with the business community. The more the cities are able to streamline their existing processes, the more they will be able to leverage the benefits brought by the Portal. The Portal will also provide tools, such as workflow, that will assist in the work to improve operational processes.

END USERS

There are multiple types of users that are expected to use the Multi-City Licensing and Tax Portal. All access will be managed by role and with appropriate security requirements. The primary identified users are:

1. Business owners
2. Business staff
3. Accountants and other third party preparers
4. City staff
5. City administrators

User access will be designated and managed by "accounts."

1. A business will create an account that authorizes access to the business information appropriate to the user
2. Accountants and other preparers will create an account that provides appropriate access to one or more business accounts authorized by each business supported by the preparer
3. City staff will have accounts that authorize appropriate access to information for business data for that city
4. The Portal will enable unique identification of the applicant or tax filer for any specific transaction or request
5. The Portal will group all issues relating to the same account and topic in one case.

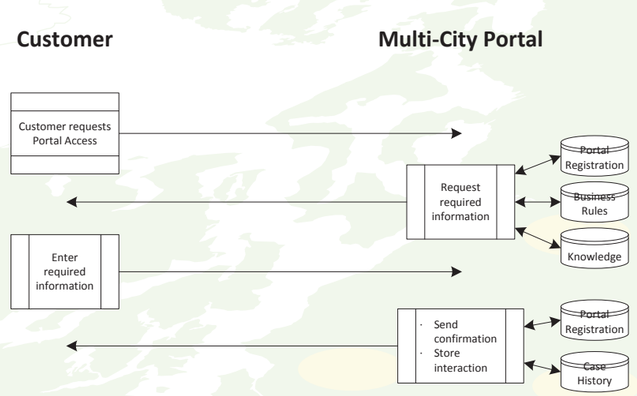
The Functional Requirements CONTINUED

1. FUNCTIONS SUPPORTED – END USERS

The Multi-City Licensing and Tax Portal supports the common functions required for an entity to conduct business in one or more of the supported cities. It supports business license and tax transactions:

A. Create Account

1. A business owner will have the ability to create an account
   a. The business owner will have the ability to authorize others to have specific access to data and transaction types to review information and create transactions on behalf of the business
2. An accountant or other third party preparer will have the ability to create an account
   a. The third party preparer will have the authority to request to add specific businesses to their account in order to review information and create transactions on behalf of one or more businesses.
3. A city will have the ability to create an account
   a. A city will have the ability to add specific authorizations for each staff member that requires access to review information or process transactions.



B. Modify Access

A business will have the ability to modify access to their account:

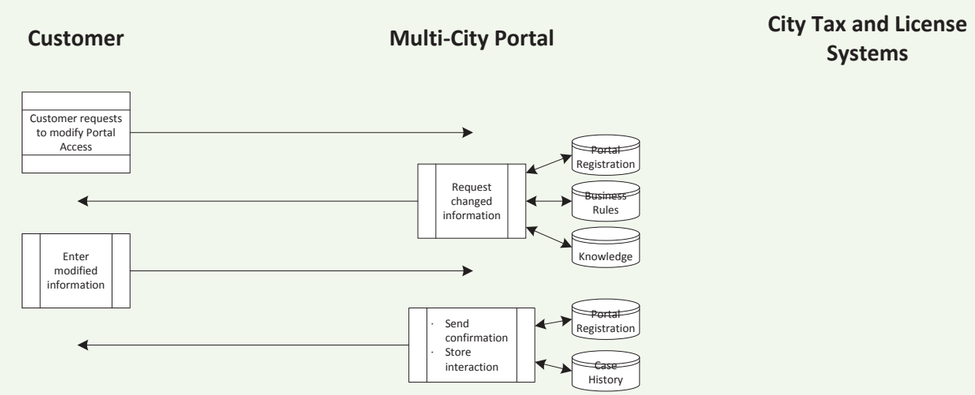
1. Change permission level for an authorized user
2. Remove authorized user
3. Add new authorized user

Accountants or third party preparers will have the ability to modify their accounts and access to their accounts:

1. Change permission level for an authorized user
2. Remove authorized user
3. Add new authorized user
4. Remove business from account
5. Add business to account

A city will have the ability to modify accounts and access to accounts:

1. Change permission level for an authorized user
2. Add new authorized user
3. Remove authorized user

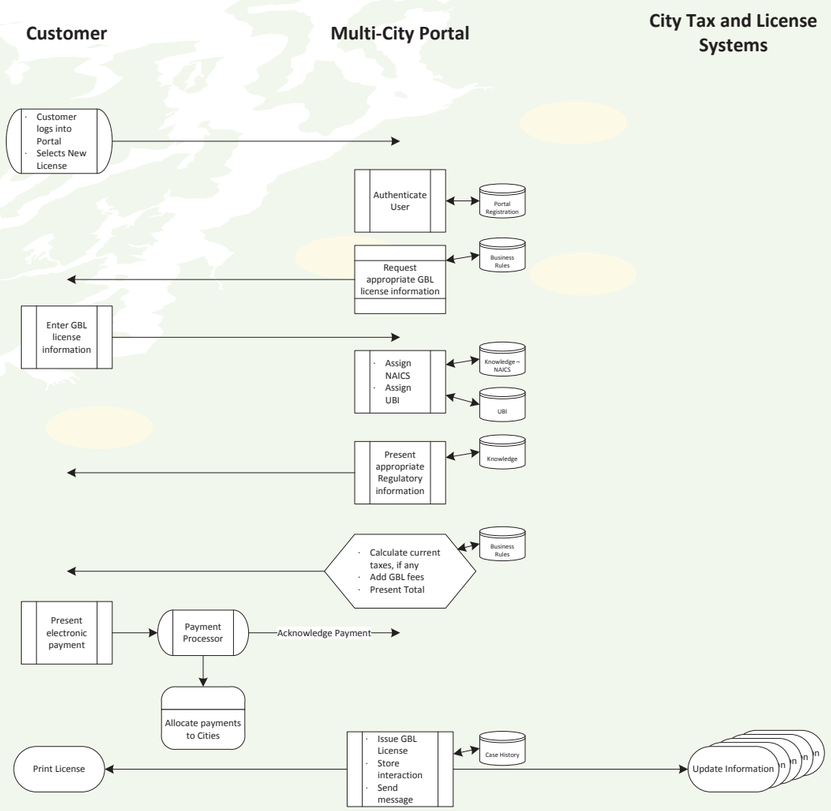


The Functional Requirements CONTINUED

C. Issue New General Business License

A business will have the ability to apply for and receive a new general business license:

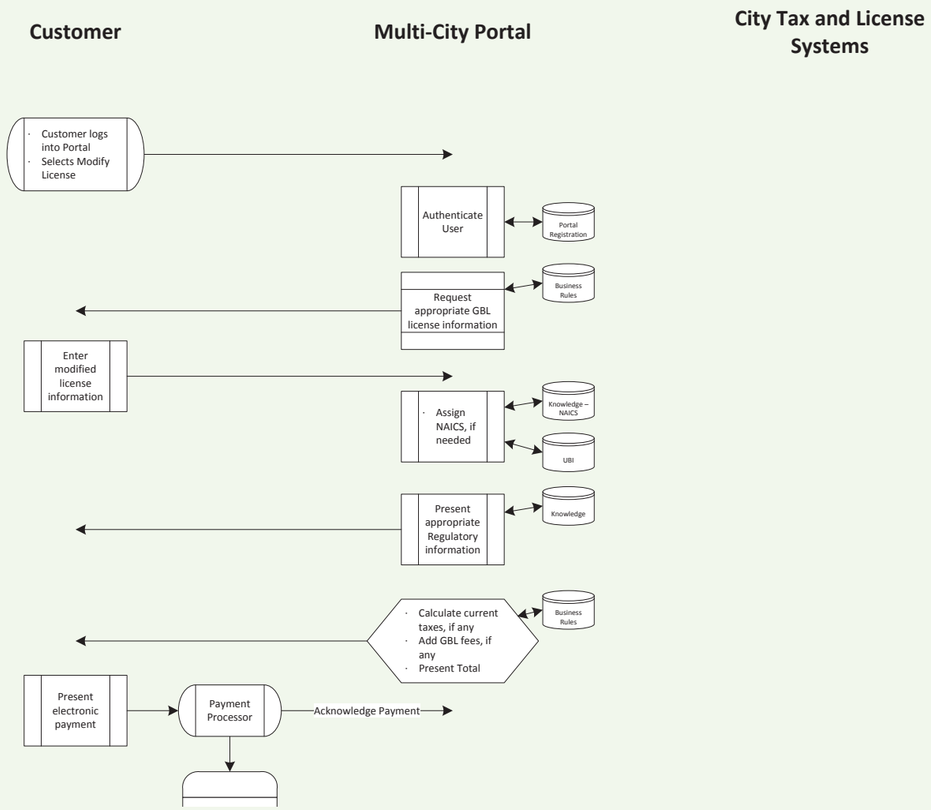
1. From a set of pre-defined numbers, obtain a new unique Unified Business Identifier (UBI)*
2. Use an existing UBI to add a business license
3. Apply for a license for one city
4. Apply for licenses for multiple cities
5. Provide the ownership type of the business
6. Provide the legal name of the business
7. Document the trade name, if any
8. Provide the starting date of the business in the city where the business is being conducted
9. Determine and provide tax filing frequency based on gross receipts
10. Provide the street address of the business
11. Provide the mailing address of the business
12. Determine the need for regulatory license based on business type (NAICS code)
13. Review status of license application at any time
14. Print an approved license



D. Modify General Business License

A business will have the ability to modify information supporting a general business license:

1. The Portal will populate a change across all cities associated with the business
2. The Portal will support the ability to print a modified license
3. Demographic information that can be changed or corrected includes:
   a. Business contact name
   b. Physical address
   c. Mailing address
   d. Telephone number
   e. E-mail address
4. Business type may be changed or corrected



*Requested, but has not been accepted by DOR.

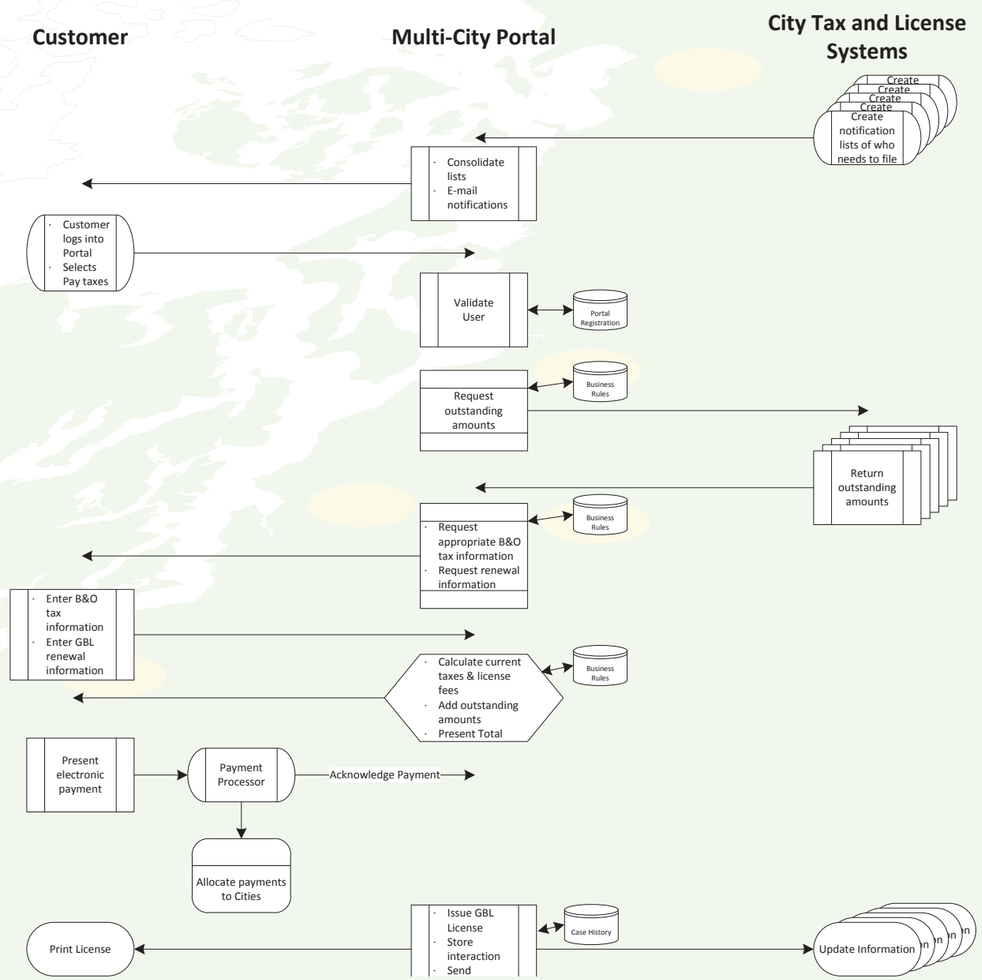
E. Renew General Business License

A business will have the ability to renew a general business license for each city that requires a renewal:

1. The Portal will send an e-mail notification documenting licenses due for renewal
2. The Portal, upon login, will display an alert for licenses due for renewal
3. The user must perform all renewals through the Portal
4. The user may renew all licenses in one transaction
5. The Portal will display information for verification and change prior to renewal processing
6. The Portal will accept an electronic payment for license renewals



F. Issue New Regulatory Business License

The Portal will have the capability to support the issuance of a regulatory license for participating cities. A business will have the ability to apply for regulatory licenses for participating cities:

1. The Portal will determine if a regulatory license is required by business type and city based on NAICS code
2. The Portal will determine if the applicant has a current general business license for the city that requires the regulatory license
3. The Portal will provide the ability to apply for or renew a general business license if the applicant does not have already the license
4. The Portal will route the applicant to the appropriate web page to complete the transaction if they need to request or renew a general business license prior to the issuance of a regulatory license
5. The Portal will populate any relevant data previously entered by the applicant into the relevant data fields
6. The Portal will request and additional information required to issue the regulatory license
7. The Portal will Issue the license if all required information and processes are fulfilled
8. The Portal will create a workflow with status tracking for required items that cannot be satisfied through the Portal, for example fingerprints or floor plans

G. Renew Regulatory Business License

A business will have the ability to renew a regulatory business license for each business type and participating city that requires a renewal:

1. The Portal will send an e-mail notification documenting licenses due for renewal
2. The Portal will display an alert for licenses due for renewal upon user login
3. The user will initiate all renewals through the Portal
4. The user may initiate renewal for all licenses due through one transaction
5. The Portal will display information for verification and change prior to renewal processing
6. The Portal will accept an electronic payment for license renewals
7. The Portal will create a workflow with status tracking for required items that cannot be satisfied through the Portal, i.e. fingerprints
8. The Portal will Issue the renewed license if all required information and processes are fulfilled

H. Pay Business and Occupation (B&O) Taxes

A business will have the capability to file and pay all Business and Occupation taxes due to one or more cities. The Portal will:

1. Display and alert the user for any unfiled returns upon login
2. E-mail a reminder for any unfiled returns
3. Display an alert to the user of any unpaid taxes upon login
4. E-mail a reminder of any unpaid taxes

The Functional Requirements CONTINUED

5. Support multiple filing statuses
   a. Monthly
   b. Quarterly
   c. Annual
   d. Non-filing
6. Allow filing to be done for any individual city or all cities within one transaction
7. Display the last tax payment date and amount
8. Pre-populate all forms with prior filing information
9. Provide prompts where current filing differs from the prior filing
10. Automatically calculate tax payment due based on revenue or gross receipts data provided by the filer and the business rules of each city
11. Display only the applicable classification, deduction, square-footage, credits, and rate considerations appropriate for the each city during the tax filing input process
12. Display only the applicable fields for input
13. Display any unpaid taxes, penalties and interest in total amount due
14. Calculate the total amount due including penalties and interest on original filings
15. Provide definitions for deductions in context during filing
16. Display unused tax credits for use only to the city holding the credit
17. Allow all taxes due to all cities to be paid in one transaction, if desired
18. Display a breakdown of the financial transaction to the user
19. Pre-populate forms with pertinent prior information
20. Submit requests to amend a previously filed return
21. All amended returns will be available online and tied to the original tax return and previously amended returns
22. Online record of the filing history will be maintained
23. Provide the ability to schedule payments

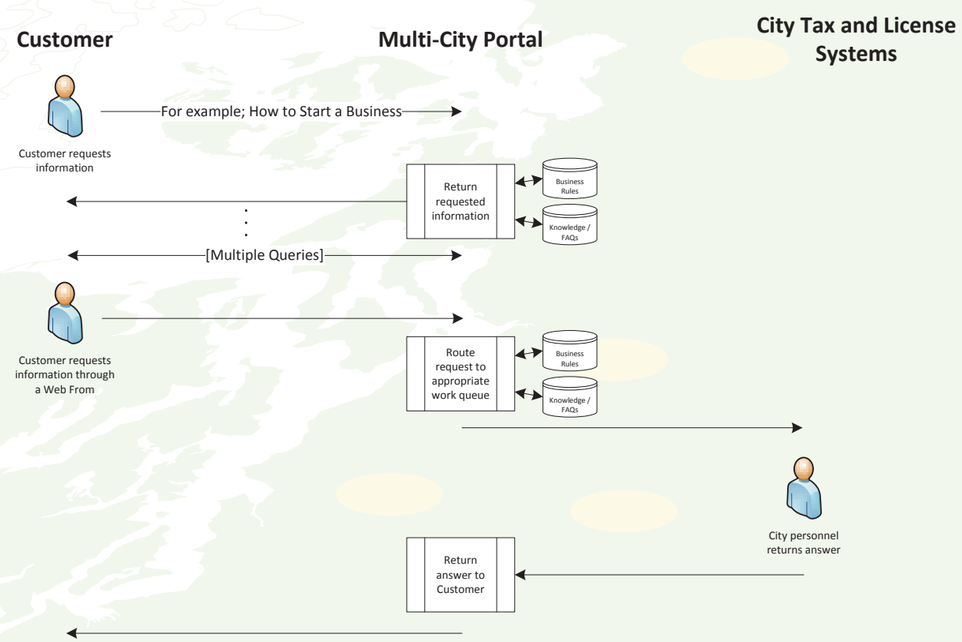
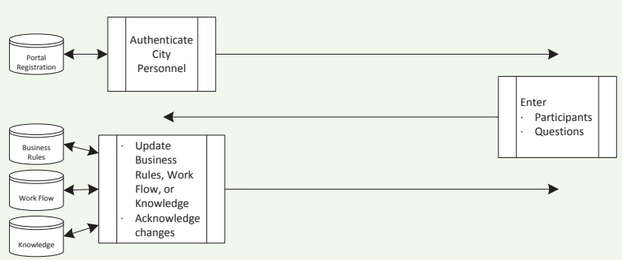
I. Self-Service Help

Provide the ability for a user to obtain self-service help. The Portal will provide:

1. Help function to leverage the "knowledge" used for data and transaction processing
2. Context sensitive help for fields on the screen
3. Question and answer help (guided help) for general inquiries
4. E-mail form from a specific data entry web page for contextual inquiries
5. Chat session from specific pages and fields to provide real time access to contextual information from the responding tax representatives
6. Chat session availability that is readily apparent to the user
7. Chat sessions that will be initiated with the appropriate city



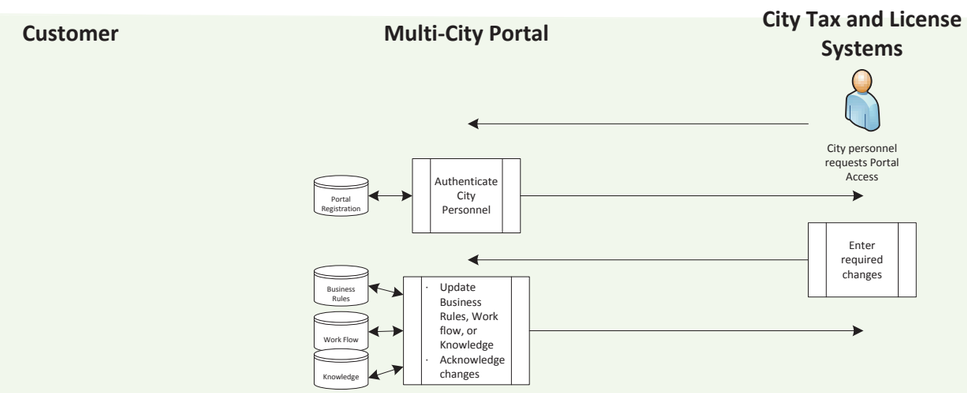


2. FUNCTIONS SUPPORTED – CITY STAFF

A. Create Business Rules

The Portal will provide the capability to create advanced user maintained business rules to manage the data and transaction flow through the system. The Portal business rule functionality will support:

1. Creation by advanced functional users rather than IT staff
2. Publication review and control by the Portal
3. Leveraging the knowledge articles to stay synchronized with information available to users
4. A test capability to validate accuracy of new business rules



B. Change Business Rules

The Portal will provide the ability to modify the business rules that manage the flow of data and transactions through the system. The Portal will support:

1. Modification of business rules by advanced functional users rather than IT staff
2. Publication review and control
3. Leveraging the knowledge articles to stay synchronized with information available to users
4. A test capability to validate accuracy

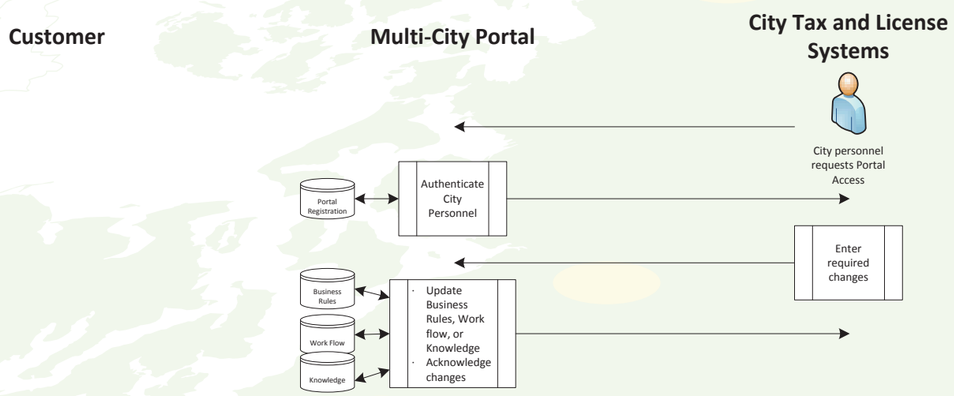
C. Create Knowledge Articles

The Portal will provide the ability to create knowledge articles to promote self-service for users. The Portal knowledge articles functionality will support:

1. The creation of knowledge articles by advanced functional users
2. Publication review and control
3. Context sensitive references by the knowledge base
4. The same knowledge articles for all users:
   a. Business owners and staff
   b. Accountants and third part preparers
   c. City support staff
5. Leveraging knowledge articles for use in the business rules to manage the flow of data and transactions



D. Change Knowledge Articles

The Portal will provide the ability to change knowledge articles to keep information current and to promote self-service for users. The Portal will support:

1. Changes made by advanced functional users
2. Publication review and control
3. Context sensitive references
4. The same knowledge articles for all users:
   a. Business owners and staff
   b. Accountants and third part preparers
   c. City support staff
5. Leveraging knowledge articles for use in the business rules to manage the flow of data and transactions

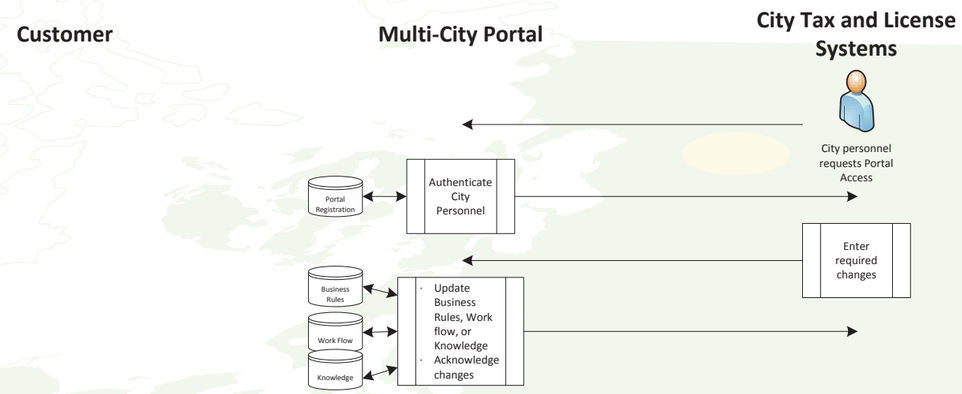
E. Create city-specific work flows

The Portal will provide the ability to define multiple, city-specific workflows. Examples of city-specific workflows include:

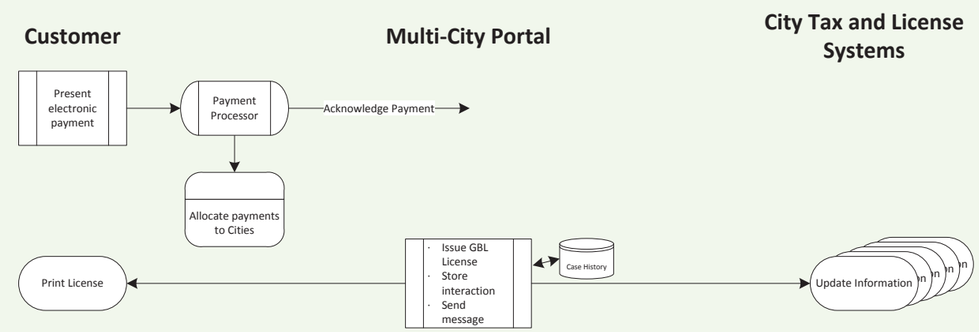
1. Identify business licenses that require additional reviews, for example zoning considerations
2. Provide information to support tax reviews
3. Support the submission of questions by businesses or their representatives
4. Identify business licenses that require regulatory licenses and route for approval



A. Payment Processing

The Portal will provide the ability to accept payments from within the Portal. The Portal will support the following payment processing functions:

1. Collect all monies due
2. Remit correct amounts due to each city
3. Present account and credit balances to the user
4. Accept multiple electronic payment types
   a. Credit cards
   b. Debit cards
   c. Electronic checks
   d. EFT
5. Provide a total for payment
6. Provide a breakdown of the single payment amount by city and type to the business user

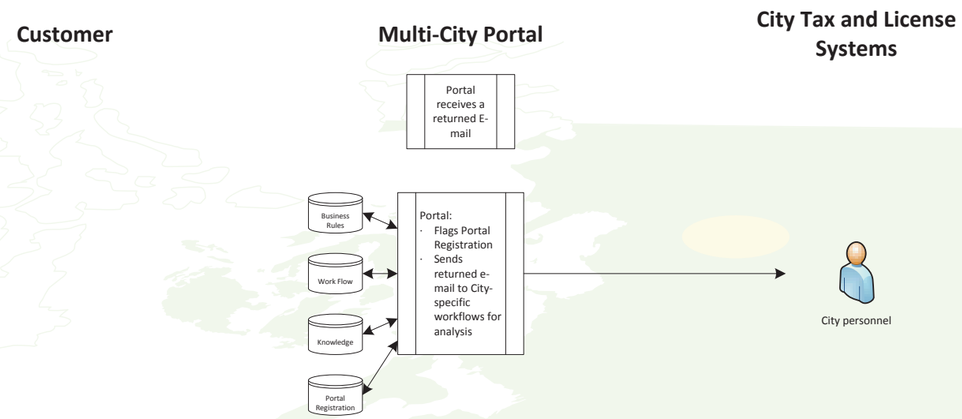


The Functional Requirements CONTINUED

G. Returned E-mail

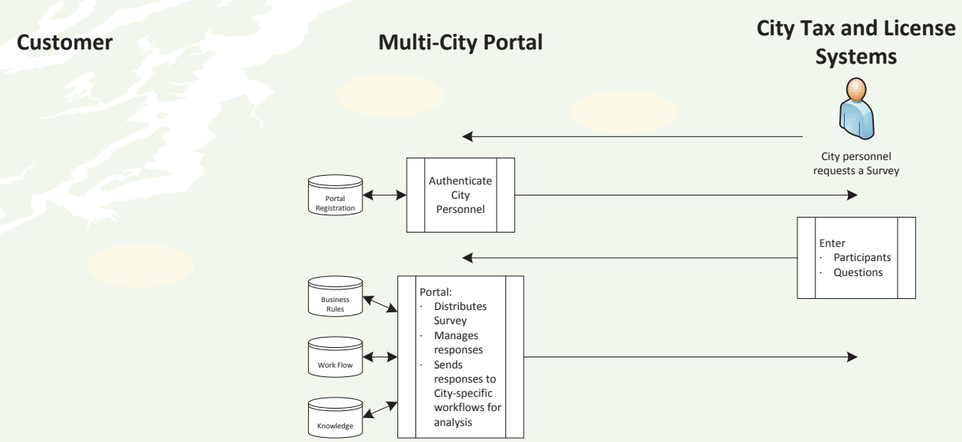
The Portal will provide the ability to manage returned e-mail. The Portal will:

1. Automatically "attach" the returned e-mail to the business account
2. Notify the impacted city by electronic means of the returned mail
3. Provide the mechanism to receive and attach the new e-mail address to the business account

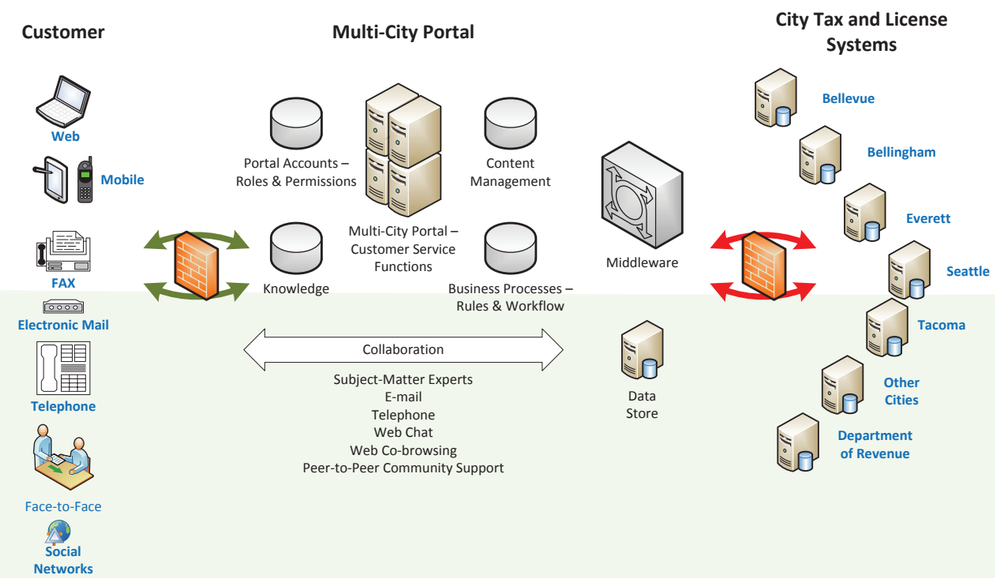


H. Surveys

The Portal will provide the ability for city personnel may create, send, and collect responses for surveys.



3. End Points



There are multiple eventual technical end points that must be supported by the Multi-City Licensing and Tax Portal, but in reality, there is only one specific end point or integration point for the Portal itself; the middleware. Each city that participates in the Portal are the eventual end-points to the Portal. These points are all reached through the single end point or "middleware" that interacts between the Portal and each end system. The job of the middleware is to receive the transaction requests from the Portal and reformat each transaction for its eventual end system. It then passes the transaction to the system and waits for an answer, if one is required, from that end system for display back to the Portal.

This architecture allows for a simple, intuitive user interface while protecting the user from the complexities of the eventual processing system. It also allows data to be entered once and used multiple times throughout the set of transactions.

More detail regarding the integrations with the cities' processing systems can be found in the Technical Environment document.

CONCLUSION

These requirements represent the business functions that the Portal needs to support in order to meet the goals of the system. The belief remains that the Portal can be implemented using commercial "off-the-shelf" software that will keep costs as low as possible and provide an ease of maintenance and upgrades to keep the Portal current and viable. During the implementation of the Portal, some of the first work will be to detail the design that supports the business functional requirements as well as continuing the following efforts:

- Focus groups with businesses, associations, stakeholders, and other business groups to define and refine Portal elements
- Department of Revenue to develop information sharing agreements
- Participating cities to continue simplifying business license and tax elements
- Interesting cities to increase their participation in the Multi-city License and Tax Portal

The technical environment that supports these business requirements follow in a separate document.

Appendices

APPENDIX A: GOVERNANCE ITEMS FROM FACILITATION SESSIONS

A. Alignment among Cities

There are currently multiple payment methods across the cities for obtaining and renewing licenses, which also differ from the various methods of collecting tax payments; sometimes within the same city. The group is encouraged to normalize payment methods within each city and across the cities to the degree possible.	Recommendation: 1) Work offline to come to agreement on payment methods. 2) Find third party payment services. 3) Submit to Governance body for decision.
There are inconsistencies across the cities regarding issuing the timing of issuing general license registration, particularly in regards to zoning and dependent regulatory licenses. An effort to bring the timing more inline across the cities would be beneficial.	Recommendation: 1) Work offline to review standardization and customer service. 2) Submit to Governance body for decision.
The Portal must capture all payment information with the ability to pay any and all taxes and business licenses at the same time - Verification of the payment of all taxes must be made before a business license is issued	Recommendation: Submit to Governance body for decision (verification).
Define consistent business rules for gross receipts	Recommendation: 1) Submit to Governance body for decision

B. Integration of Portal Process and Design

The team needs to recommend a method to spread partial payments across the impacted cities when a business is making partial payments and has obligations in multiple cities.	Recommendation: 1) Support partial payments – Governance 2) The Portal will support an individual city's allocation logic 3) Submit to Governance body for decision – do we want consistency in how the cities apply partial payments?

C. Integration of Portal Process and Design

GBL

APPENDIX D: TAXONOMY ELEMENTS

Taxonomy Elements

Following are the detailed joint taxonomy that has been rationalized across each participating city. The Taxonomy has been gathered through interviews with individual city subject matter experts and review of all forms and applications for General Business Licenses, Regulatory Licenses, Business & Occupation Tax, Admission Tax, Utility Tax, Gambling Tax, and a review of each city's legislation. In addition the taxonomy has been rationalized and validated in a joint facilitated session with each city participating.

Taxonomy Overview

The taxonomy herein is a common agreed upon definition of terms or vocabulary across all participating cities. This rationalized single list of common taxonomy is used to:

- Define the beginnings of a common data model for the Portal
- Identify relationships between taxonomy elements to drive further functional, technical requirements, and future business rules
- Record how each taxonomy term maps into each unique city application (for example, New General Business License, B&O Tax Return, etc.)
- Simplify and minimize the terms used across cities and applications for users of the Portal
- Simplify the rules, information, and integration required to setup and manage the Portal

How to Use

Each Taxonomy Element or term has several pieces of information associated with it to help understand its purpose and usage. The following table explains the definition of each of these:

INFORMATION (OR COLUMN)	DESCRIPTION
Taxonomy Reference Number	A unique reference number assigned to each individual taxonomy element. This allows for easy reference to a taxonomy element in other documentation.
Grouping	A grouping or classification of like taxonomy elements that provides a context for the term. For example, a grouping of Address with a taxonomy element of State. (See "Understanding Groupings" below)
Taxonomy Type	Indicates how shared a taxonomy element is across cities. The types are defined as: • Common. All Cities use the taxonomy element. • Extended. Two or more cities, but not all, use the taxonomy element. • <City Name>. Taxonomy element is specific to only that city. This becomes an important part of managing taxonomy elements in the future as things change.
Name	The common agreed upon taxonomy or term
Description	A description of the meaning of the taxonomy or term
Synonyms	Refers to old words used to describe the same thing or similar (in case of rationalization). This can be used to look up the taxonomy based upon old terms used.
List of Values	In some cases, a taxonomy element has a defined list of values. Example, a legal business type can have values of Sole Proprietor, Partnership, Corporation etc.
Rule(s)	Any specific rules (if identified)
Forms	References any forms or applications where the taxonomy element is used
General Process	A reference to the process (as defined in the Feasibility Study August 31, 2011) where the taxonomy element is used
City	Indicates the specific city or cities where a taxonomy element is used

Understanding Groupings

The following table lists each taxonomy grouping and the corresponding first four digits of the taxonomy reference number:

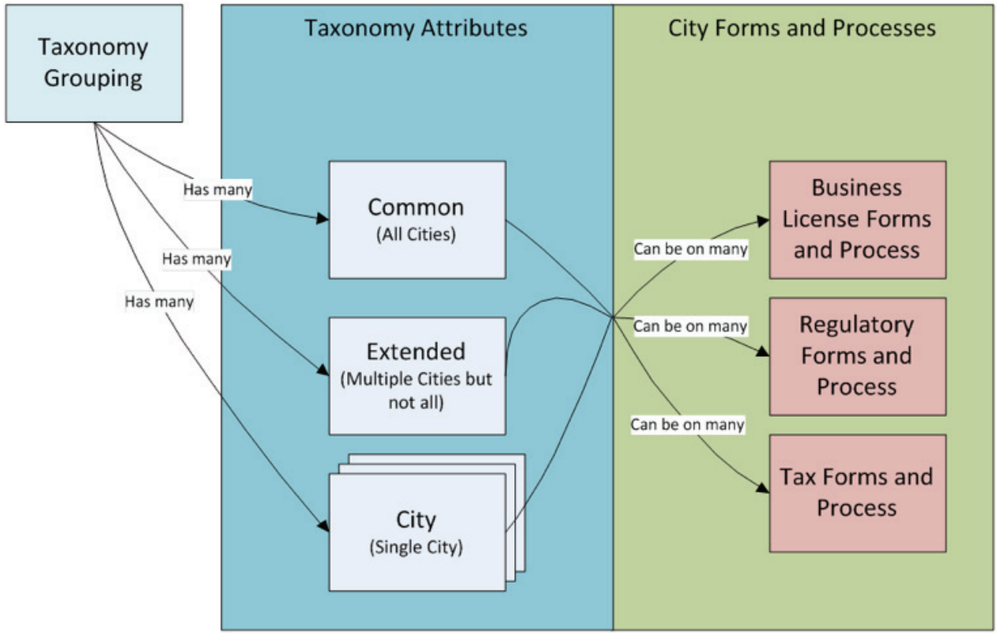
The following diagram demonstrates how groupings relate to taxonomy attributes and specific city forms and processes:



Forms Reference

In order to reference back to the original city forms, a unique reference number has been used. In addition, the actual name of the field used on the forms is used in brackets after the name of the form.

Example: On Tacoma's Sidewalk Vending Application, a reference of FORM.TAC.013 is used. To indicate a field that captures the business name on the form, the reference is: FORM.TAC.013 - Sidewalk Vending Application (Vending Business Name)

The following table lists the applications (i.e. business licenses and tax forms) used in the taxonomy:

BUSN.005	BUSN.005 - Unified Business Identifier Number (UBI)	BUSINESS	COMMON	Unified Business Identifier Number (UBI)	Unique business identifier obtained from the State of Washington. Nine digit number. The addition seven digits are for the Branch and Location Codes (three digits are for different business under the same UBI). (Four digits are the location number). example: xxx xxx xxx (001) (0001). Only one (1) UBI is issued per legal entity. However, the UBI can have a one-to-one, one-to-many, or many-to-many relationship with the City Business Number.	UBI Previous Business UBI		Seattle: Not required, nor verified, but they can fill in. Sometimes it is incorrect as an organization change from one to the other (UBI changes). Would be nice to make it mandatory. Everett Can submit if they haven't obtained the number, however, they ask for it. Tacoma Only require if it is a corporation. May look it up themselves. Bellevue Bellevue assigns branch and location numbers to the UBI, Bellevue uses all sixteen (16) numbers. But majority is xxx xxx xxx (001) (0001). Starbucks, QFC, Fred Meyer etc, will have multiple locations. There could be multiple Bellevue numbers assigned to a single UBI number, and multiple UBI numbers assigned to a single Bellevue UBI number (16 digits). Bellevue uses the UBI as their primary tracking. If no state UBI exists, then Bellevue auto generates (system generated) a UBI number specific to them. Companies less than $12k do not get a UBI. Seattle, Tacoma, Everett Will use up to 6 digits, however, may use as few as 2 digits. Bellevue People don't know their NAICS. Bellevue is going to cross reference with DOR for any legacy accounts in order to get their NAICS number. Bellevue uses DOR NAICS, even though other claim it is not so accurate. Bellevue uses the NAICS during an audit. (Bellevue used to do SIC codes, but hasn't begun using NAICS yet). Budget also uses it. Could use it in the future to reporting, and think through future policy.	FORM.SEA.001 - Application for Business License (N.A.I.C.S.
