

City of Seattle 2017 State Legislative Bulletin

April 3, 2017

Number 12

The City of Seattle is committed to being a safe, vibrant, interconnected, and affordable city for all.

Week Overview

Week 12 continued to be largely focused on budgets. The House released their proposed 2017-19 operating and transportation budgets on Monday, March 27th, and the Senate released their proposed capital budget on Tuesday, March 28th. Following the release of these budgets, there was a flurry of hearings, amendments, and floor sessions.

In addition to budget activity, there was also a final push in the policy committees as the opposite house policy cutoff date approached on March 29th. Any bill that did not pass out of its opposite house policy committee is considered dead unless it has been deemed necessary to implement the budget (NTIB).

Priority Areas

2017-2019 Biennium Operating Budget Proposals

House: The House Democrats released their $44.7 billion 2017-2019 biennium operating budget proposal. Compared to the Senate proposal, the House proposal spends $1.6 billion more over the 2017-2019 biennium.

Education

The House proposal provides $1.8 billion in K-12 funding over the next two years in an effort to comply with McCleary order requirements to fully fund K-12 basic education by 2018, without relying on local levy dollars. Over four years, the House proposal provides $7.1 billion for K-12 education to comply with these funding requirements.

During their budget release, House Democrats rejected the Senate's proposal of using a levyswap for property taxes to provide an estimated $1.5 billion in revenue earmarked for K-12 education over the 2017-19 biennium. Instead, Democrats proposed $3 billion in new revenue from capital gains and some business tax increases over the biennium.

New Revenue & Assumptions

The House 2017-19 biennium operating budget proposal relies on the following revenue sources and assumptions:

- Enacting a 7% capital gains tax on earnings above $25,000 for single filers and $50,000 for joint filers (estimated to raise $715 million in revenue during the biennium)
- Increasing an existing business and occupation tax on larger Washington State businesses, while exempting businesses with less than $250,000 in gross revenue from paying the tax (estimated to provide $1.2 billion in revenue during the biennium)
- Ending an exemption for online sales (estimated to bring in $340.8 million over the biennium)
- Increase real estate taxes on sales of homes priced at $1 million or more, while lowering taxes for homes priced under $250,000 (estimated to raise about $419.7 million during the biennium)
- $206 million in assumed reversions
- $96 million in budget-driven revenue, other legislation and other adjustments

Health Care

- Accept Federal Medicaid Transformation Waiver
- $61 million to restore assumed Healthier Washington savings that did not materialize
- $41 million for Hepatitis C costs

Behavioral Health

- $153 million for mental health reforms over the first biennium and $350 million over four years (versus $95 million during the first biennium included in the Republican Senate proposal)
- $40 million for supported living rate increases

Human Services

- $12 million for homelessness projects
- $20 million for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) increases
- No cuts to Emergency Food Assistance Program
- 8% grant increase in the State Food Assistance
- Increase to the Aged, Blind and Disabled program

Early Learning and Child Care

- Create the Department of Children, Youth & Families
- Funding 3,000 slots for three and four year olds in the state preschool program (over the next four years ($39 million allocated over the biennium)
- $25 million for childcare center rate increases

Other

• Fully funding labor contracts for 38 state worker labor unions negotiated with the governor's office to provide $682 million for increased compensation for state workers (Republicans rejected the contracts in their proposal and proposed a $500 flat annual increase each year for two years instead)

• 6% cost of living increases for most state workers over the biennium

The House operating budget proposal received a public hearing on March 27th, and executive action was taken on March 28th. On March 30th, the House passed the budget with a 50-48 vote.

Senate: The Senate Republicans released their 2017-2019 biennium operating budget proposal on March 21st. The $43 billion biennium budget proposal relies on $200 million in transfers to the state general fund from other state accounts. This plan spends $4.8 billion more than the 2015-2017 biennium enacted operating budget.

Senate Bill 5048, the Senate proposed operating budget, had a public hearing on March 21^{st} , and executive action was taken on March 22^{nd} . The Senate passed the budget on March 23^{rd} with a 25-24 vote.

Some notable highlights of the 2017-2019 biennium Senate Republican operating budget proposal includes:

Education

In effort to satisfy the McCleary order, the Senate proposed putting an additional $1.8 billion towards education. This plan does not include new revenue and instead relies on anticipated increases in revenue, several fund transfers, and cuts to programs.

The originally proposed State Local Effort Levy property tax is adjusted from $1.80/$1,000 of assed value to $1.55/$1,000 of assed value. This new statewide property tax would replace the school district levies currently in place. This levy swap would cover approximately $1.5 billion of the proposed education package.

With the current Seattle Public Schools' property tax levy being at $1.22/$1,000 of assessed value, this would be a raise in property tax for Seattle residents. According to initial analyses, a homeowner in Seattle would pay about $165 more in property tax for a home assessed at $500,000. In total, this would be a $305 million property tax increase for Seattle with a $112 million return. It is worth noting that though this plan will bring an increase in property taxes for Seattle, the plan will also bring large property decrease for others. Senate Republicans believe that this will solve the equity concerns of our current local school levy system.

Public Safety

- Funding for enhanced sentences for DUIs, property crime, sex offenses against children, domestic violence, and other crimes
- Funding for eight classes to train state patrol officers on the use of deadly force

Health Care

• All funding is suspended in the 2015-17 supplemental budget for the Medicaid Innovation Demonstration under the State Health Care Authority. In addition, for the 2017-19 biennium, funding is not authorized for the Health Care Authority for initiatives 1 and 3 of the Demonstration. However, funding in the amount of $41.388 million is authorized for initiative 2 relating to Long Term Support Services. By not authorizing funding for the full Medicaid Innovation Demonstration, $1.5 billion in federal funds (over 5 years) is put at risk. These dollars would fund programs that serve extremely vulnerable, disabled and low-income households, including people experiencing long-term homelessness with a physical or mental health disability.

Behavioral Health

• Nearly $95 million to improve the state's two psychiatric hospitals. The Republican proposal includes fewer mental health beds than in the governor's proposal. Similar to the governor's proposal, it emphasizes shifting to community based treatment by moving civil patients away from Western State Hospital and funding six new crisis walk-in centers.

Human Services

- Bans the use of food stamps for soda and candy
- Funds many homelessness programs out of existing resources resulting in an overall cut of approximately $25 million to homelessness and affordable housing programs
- Time limit is added to the Aged, Blind and Disabled (ABD) program, eliminating income supports for the extremely low-income, disabled population served by this program
- TANF funds are transferred to other programs, including higher education
- Cuts State Food Assistance

Other

- Maintains $225 million in shared revenues to cities
- This budget shifts the state costs for LEOFF 2 pension obligations to cities and other public safety employers, placing a significant new financial burden on cities for a program that cities don't manage or control

Education

Education Funding Plans: SSB 5607, the Senate Republican's education funding plan, sponsored by Sen. Braun (R), passed off the Senate floor on February 1st, with a 25-24 vote. It then received a public hearing in the House Appropriations Committee on February 6th.

ESSB 5875, sponsored by Sen. Braun (R), was introduced alongside the Senate Republican proposed Operating Budget and modifies elements of SSB 5607. This updated plan adjusted the new State Local Effort Levy property tax from $1.80/$1,000 of assed value to $1.55/$1,000 of assed value, which would be a raise in property tax for Seattle residents.

Public Safety

Use of Deadly Force: SSB 5073/HB 1529 adopts recommendations approved by the state task force, which deletes the good faith and malice clauses in favor of a new standard that asks if a "reasonable officer" would use deadly force in the same circumstances. Additional language was added that states if any provision of the act is held by a court to be invalid, the remainder of the act is incapable of accomplishing the legislative purpose and is also invalid. The bill is considered "Necessary to Implement the Budget" and is not subject to cut-offs.

Transportation

2017-2019 Transportation Budget Proposals

Senate: The Senate Republicans released their 2017-19 biennium transportation budget proposal Monday, March 20th. A summary of the proposal can be viewed here.

The budget includes almost $8.4 billion in total appropriations. Approximately $470 million of this comes from re-appropriations from the 2015-2017 biennium budget for delayed capital activity and additional forecast federal monies in the capital spending plan. Overall, the 2017-2019 biennium proposed transportation budget is less than the 2015-2017 enacted biennium budget and lower than the governor's $8.5 billion proposed transportation budget.

Below are some highlights for the 2017-2019 proposed Senate Republican 2017-2019 biennium transportation budget:

- $60 million of additional TPA funds to ensure the Alaskan Way Viaduct (AWV) Deep Bore Tunnel project has adequate cash flow to continue. In addition, the budget uses $200 million ($122 million in 2017-19) of TPA bonds to be repaid from tolls to fund the existing project budget. The toll rate setting process is expected to begin in Fall 2017 with tolls starting in early 2019.
- $10 million of multimodal funds are included in the Senate budget for transit mitigation during construction of the AWV tunnel project.
- Adds new capacity on I-5 from Seneca Street to Olive Way with mostly federal FAST Act funds: $20.2 million.

House: The House released their 2017-2019 biennium transportation budget proposal Monday, March 27th.

The House Transportation Committee Chair's proposal for the 2017 Supplemental Transportation Budget, includes $8.1 billion in appropriation authority, a decrease of $495 million from the 2016 supplemental budget. The decrease includes $294 million re-appropriated to 2017-19 for delayed capital project activity. Other adjustments are made to accommodate unexpected needs and opportunities.

Below are some highlights for the House 2017-2019 biennium transportation budget:

- $60 million of additional TPA funds in the 2017-19 biennium to ensure the project has adequate cash flow to stay on track with the contractor's schedule of opening for use by the spring of 2019. In addition, the budget uses $122 million of TPA bonds to be repaid from tolls to fund the existing project budget. The toll rate setting process is expected to begin in fall 2017, with tolling to begin when the tunnel opens.
- $117 million to complete the SR 520 floating bridge and corridor project and the I-90 Snoqualmie Pass project (from Hyak to Easton).
- $16 million to add new capacity on I-5 from Seneca Street to Olive Way.
- $15.3 million of multimodal funds are included in the budget for transit mitigation during construction of the AWV tunnel project.
- $250,000 is provided for a consultant study of the regulation of transportation network companies in the state.

The bill received a public hearing on February 23rd, in the House Finance Committee, and executive action was taken on March 30th.

Transportation Network Companies: Sen. King (R) introduced legislation to create a statewide regulatory framework for transportation network companies (SB 5620). Our City departments have had productive negotiations with the transportation network companies, and these discussions will help shape the statewide regulation framework. The bill was amended on the floor by the Senate and passed on March 7th with a 34-15 vote. The amended bill provides consumer protection provisions and a 6-month suspension of a TNC's permit if they attempt to deceive or manipulate authorities. Our departments still have concerns with certain provisions of this bill and will continue to work with the proponents to try and reach agreement. SB 5620 received a public hearing on March 14th in the House Labor and Workplace Standards Committee.

Looking Ahead

There are only three weeks remaining in the regular session. The opposite house fiscal policy committee cutoff is on April 4th, followed by the opposite house floor cutoff on April 12th. As a reminder, the last day of the regular session is April 23rd. However, it is still anticipated by most that agreement will not be reached on the budget by April 23rd, and we will likely go into one or more special sessions.
