

Dear Cheasty Project Advisory Team,

We are pleased to present you with this petition affirming this statement:

"As a South Seattle community member, I SUPPORT the full and complete Cheasty Trails plan as put forth by Friends of Cheasty Greenspace at Mt. View. I support a full restoration of our community woods. I support a robust trail system for both pedestrians and bicyclists, both a perimeter loop trail and connecting trails through the middle of the space. I support trails linking communities and connecting neighborhoods on the east side of Cheasty Greenspace with Kimball Elementary and Jefferson Park."

Attached is a list of individuals who have added their names to this petition, as well as additional comments written by the petition signers themselves.

Sincerely,
Erin Kane

I Support Cheasty Trails!

As a neighbor of Cheasty Greenspace, I SUPPORT the full and complete Cheasty Trails plan as put forth by Friends of Cheasty Greenspace at Mt. View. I support a full restoration of my neighboring woods. I support a robust trail system for both pedestrians and bicyclists, both a perimeter loop trail and connecting trails through the middle of the space. I support trails linking communities and connecting neighborhoods on the east side of Cheasty with Kimball Elementary and Jefferson Park.

I believe that the addition of trails in Cheasty will improve the health of the woods by improving access to those woods, thus inspiring more community members to care for them. I believe that City parks are for the benefit of all Seattle residents. The current status quo in Cheasty Greenspace denies access to nature to hundreds of Columbia City and Rainier Valley residents, reserving the benefits of Cheasty (nature, wildlife, exercise, personal restoration) to those who live on the west side of the property. The current condition of Cheasty Greenspace is discriminatory to many of the area's neighbors and detrimental to the long-term health of the greenspace. The complete Cheasty Trails plan as put forth by Friends of Cheasty Greenspace at Mt. View is the best and only proposal to improve both the health of Cheasty Greenspace and the well-being of all neighboring communities.

Signed,

Nathaniel Klein

Yes! We would love for this to be part of our neighborhood. After SPS cut bus routes this year, many families that are in "walking distance" have no safe route to school. These trails linking Rainier Vista to Kimball and Mercer would be such a help to many families.

I support restoring Cheasty Greenspace and building trails in it. Our neighborhood desperately needs nearby access to nature. By restoring the greenspace we will support nature, and by building both biking and hiking trails we will strengthen our community. We need a diversity of uses in this valuable greenspace to engage urban youth and support our communities. By engaging urban youth, we will develop tomorrow's forest stewards

I love the idea of trails for all. When community members can enjoy space together, then that lends toward investing in caring for and taking care of the space. As a trail and mountain biker, I also want the experience of biking in the city...biking in nature is exhilarating, meditative, peaceful, fun...a great sport for kids and adults. Trail bikers are some of the most committed and hard-working people I know in terms of caring for trails and the environments that surround them. I fully support this project ~ Kelli

A family friend mountain bike trail in Seattle would be great. I support this project. Why let a green space overgrown with invasive plant species just remain in that condition. Why not create a positive healthy use of the area by clearing out the invasive species, replanting natives ones, and promote healthy activities with walking and biking trails. It seems like an obvious choice. Any wildlife species utilizing that area are use to human activity because the green space is set in a very urban setting with vehicle traffic, construction, etc.

We're got a big issue in the environmental community. We're pushing the younger generation away. Groups such as The Nature Conservancy and Sierra Club understand this, and the average age of their supporters is now 60+ years. Environmental ethic will fade away if the younger generation loses connection with the outdoors. Well done restoration projects, in conjunction with recreation, will light the fire for the next generation. Please support this project, in it's full extent, if for no other reason than our next generation needs to be cultivated as stewards of the environment. It's also just a really cool project that will be a win-win for forest and for youth.

Of all the urban mtn bike parks across the country has any created a negative impact? This will get more kids outside and one perimeter trail isn't enough and won't keep the interest. It also doesn't link the neighborhoods.

We need more trails close in to the city! Keep riding close and accesible, especially for families and kids. The claims that bikes harm wildlife are specious and unsupported by any scientific evidence. Opponents admit theyre driven by a desire to keep people out of this greenspace.

The opportunity to engage youth from the Rainier Valley in the pleasure of outside fun in the woods of Cheasty Park through mountain biking is too great to pass. Kids need outlets, and with the support of the various Seattle bike organizations and their members, there is a real opportunity to do some good for the kids and for the park itself, which right now is little more than a garbage dump.

With such a vast green space available, it would be a waste to not utilize the most of it for the enjoyment of residents. Implementing a watered-down version of the trail plan falls far short of the capacity and vision of this project.

A robust trail system will provide healthful and ecologically vital outdoor learning experiences to residents of Columbia City and Rainier Valley. The trails will also connect residents, currently isolated, to important resources for work, play, transit and health care.

The complete trail plans are a must! Only one loop will bring minimal interest and in turn that will create minimal care to the forest. Take Duthie Hill for example, the trails are so well done and in turn so well maintained.

Brandon Dean

The complete trails plan is critical. A single perimeter loop won't be sustainable in the long-term. It's not enough to keep the long-term steady stream of positive usage and stewardship in the park that is required to displace all of the negative usage and neglect that have destroyed this forest over the decades *and* that will just come back. A strong user community that takes pride in the trails will keep coming back forever to keep this a valuable resource for the community. That will provide a steady stream of volunteers that care and and "own" the forest -- keeping not just the dumpers, junkies, trench diggers, and other crime at bay -- it will also be there to keep the invasives out and newly planted natives healthy and strong! Otherwise... it's going to be a steady stream of $$$$ and resources from the city to keep it healthy 10 years from now. And we all know the probability of that happening.

Although I am not the stereotypical mountain biker, I am strongly in support of the full mountain bike park plan. Our children need better access to outdoor spaces. This plan is ideal for that. You only need to look at Duthy Hill to see that a bike park can be built with minimal impact to the environment.

As the father of an 8 month old who will grow up in Columbia City, I believe the Cheasty Greenspace restoration is crucial to providing an outdoor recreation space that will be enjoyed by all. The area is currently effectively off limits to the majority of the neighborhood due to condition of the trails.

The New Rainier Vista HOA board has voted in support of this project numerous times. The full vision that connects communities and activates Cheasty Greenspace with positive activities will be socially sustainable and provide a consistent volunteer base for ongoing forest restoration. Anything short of this will be a significant lost opportunity for the health of the forest, for the wellbeing of the community, and for the future of Seattle.

Properly designed, built and maintained neighborhood trail systems bring great value to an area. The Swan Creek trails built near me in Tacoma have given the area residents a cleaner place to go in the outdoors. Since the start of the project the area has dramatically improved in cleanliness and with the more consistent presence of trail users the "bad" element have vacated the park.

Volumtiers from the community working together to restore the forest are creating a civic space that will become the common identy of the neighbor hood. The only way so sustain this space is to have a trail system that connects the neighborhoods of beacon hill NRV and Columbia. The human presence will keep an eye on the space and encourage more volunteers to help restore. The alternative is the forest returning to its role as dividing neighbourhoods as pioneer deciduous trees crumble into the sea of ivy and blackberry.

Cheasty needs the investment of time, energy, care and restoration that responsible recreation and access can provide. The health of the forest, wildlife and community depends on it. Doing nothing is a death sentence for this space. Look to other model greenspaces like Frink park or Carkeek or Seward to see how trails and access can go hand in hand with restoration.

My 6 year old son and I have been volunteering over the past couple of months to restore the Cheasty Green Space for the full completion of the planned mountain bike trail. He is becoming an avid mountain biker and loves being in the woods helping out and learning about nature. The Greenspace is a quick bike ride from our home, and I hope that he will will grow up to have such a convenient resource for physical exercise and ecological education. Please allow the full build out to occur.

Offering more outdoor activities to urban kids (and adults!) can only be a good thing. I've seen the massive positive change that has come from the current trails in the south part of the space. I have lived a few blocks from Cheasty for over a decade, and really appreciate the cleanup that's been done. I regularly walk the existing trails, whereas before I avoided that area for my safety. ## I Support Cheasty Trails!

As a neighbor of Cheasty Greenspace, I SUPPORT the full and complete Cheasty Trails plan as put forth by Friends of Cheasty Greenspace at Mt. View. I support a full restoration of my neighboring woods. I support a robust trail system for both pedestrians and bicyclists, both a perimeter loop trail and connecting trails through the middle of the space. I support trails linking communities and connecting neighborhoods on the east side of Cheasty with Kimball Elementary and Jefferson Park.

I believe that the addition of trails in Cheasty will improve the health of the woods by improving access to those woods, thus inspiring more community members to care for them. I believe that City parks are for the benefit of all Seattle residents. The current status quo in Cheasty Greenspace denies access to nature to hundreds of Columbia City and Rainier Valley residents, reserving the benefits of Cheasty (nature, wildlife, exercise, personal restoration) to those who live on the west side of the property. The current condition of Cheasty Greenspace is discriminatory to many of the area's neighbors and detrimental to the long-term health of the greenspace. The complete Cheasty Trails plan as put forth by Friends of Cheasty Greenspace at Mt. View is the best and only proposal to improve both the health of Cheasty Greenspace and the well-being of all neighboring communities.

I support a full restoration of my neighboring woods. I support a robust trail system for both pedestrians and bicyclists, both a perimeter loop trail and connecting trails through the middle of the space. I support trails linking communities and connecting neighborhoods on the east side of Cheasty with Kimball Elementary and Jefferson Park.

I believe that the addition of trails in Cheasty will improve the health of the woods by improving access to those woods, thus inspiring more community members to care for them. I believe that City parks are for the benefit of all Seattle residents. The current status quo in Cheasty Greenspace denies access to nature to hundreds of Columbia City and Rainier Valley residents, reserving the benefits of Cheasty (nature, wildlife, exercise, personal restoration) to those who live on the west side of the property. The current condition of Cheasty Greenspace is discriminatory to many of the area's neighbors and detrimental to the long-term health of the greenspace. The complete Cheasty Trails plan as put forth by Friends of Cheasty Greenspace at Mt. View is the best and only proposal to improve both the health of Cheasty Greenspace and the well-being of all neighboring communities.

I believe that City parks are for the benefit of all Seattle residents. The current status quo in Cheasty Greenspace denies access to nature to hundreds of Columbia City and Rainier Valley residents, reserving the benefits of Cheasty (nature, wildlife, exercise, personal restoration) to those who live on the west side of the property. The current condition of Cheasty Greenspace is discriminatory to many of the area's neighbors and detrimental to the long-term health of the greenspace. The complete Cheasty Trails plan as put forth by Friends of Cheasty Greenspace at Mt. View is the best and only proposal to improve both the health of Cheasty Greenspace and the well-being of all neighboring communities.

I Support Cheasty Trails!

As a neighbor of Cheasty Greenspace, I SUPPORT the full and complete Cheasty Trails plan as put forth by Friends of Cheasty Greenspace at Mt. View. I support a full restoration of my neighboring woods. I support a robust trail system for both pedestrians and bicyclists, both a perimeter loop trail and connecting trails through the middle of the space. I support trails linking communities and connecting neighborhoods on the east side of Cheasty with Kimball Elementary and Jefferson Park.

I believe that the addition of trails in Cheasty will improve the health of the woods by improving access to those woods, thus inspiring more community members to care for them. I believe that City parks are for the benefit of all Seattle residents.
