

Washington Park Stormwater Tank Maintenance Project

Seattle
Public
Utilities

Project Overview

Seattle Public Utilities (SPU) owns and operates a stormwater storage tank in Washington Park near the Washington Park Playfield.

In 2021, SPU contractor crews will perform a maintenance upgrade project to improve the way this facility manages flows during rain events.

SPU is performing this work to enhance the functionality of the stormwater tank and to improve SPU's ability to manage flows more efficiently while improving water quality in the region.

Location

Construction will take place south of the Washington Park Playfield in Washington Park near E Roy Street, 29th Avenue E, and E Madison Street.

Schedule

Construction on this maintenance project will begin in mid-May of 2021, and it is expected to take about 6-7 months to complete. Work will typically occur during weekday, daytime hours.

Anticipated Impacts

During construction, you can expect:

- Construction noise, dirt, dust, and vibrations
- The section of Washington Park south of the Washington Park Playfield will be closed off
- The pedestrian paths in Washington Park that connect to E Madison St and to the intersection of E Roy St and 29th Ave E will be blocked throughout construction.
- Increased construction traffic in the southern section of Washington Park
- Following construction, SPU will perform landscaping and vegetation restoration in the park
