Certificates of Occupancy – Required With New Place of Assembly Permits

A Certificate of Occupancy (C of O) is an essential part of the permit review process for issuing assembly permits. A C of O is a document issued by the Seattle Department of Construction and Inspections (SDCI), previously the Department of Planning and Development (DPD). It certifies a building's compliance with applicable building codes and other laws, indicating it to be in a condition suitable for occupancy. The C of O also contains information about the occupancy load.

Effective August 1, 2016, a copy of the C of O will be required to be submitted at the same time the application for a new place of assembly permit is submitted rather than after the application has already been submitted.

Why Make the Change? The permitting process will be more efficient for our customers and our team when the necessary C of O information is available at the time of permit application.

Which Permits Require a Certificate of Occupancy? New permits with the following permit codes will require a C of O to be submitted at the time the permit is applied for:

2501 Series	Place of assembly, non-profits
2502 Series	Place of assembly, occupant load of 100-999
2504 Series	Place of assembly, occupant load of 1,000+

Where Can I Get a Copy of a Certificate of Occupancy Document? Records from recent years may be researched/printed online at <http://web6.seattle.gov/dpd/edms/>. Applicants can research all available building records at the SDCI Microfilm Library, located on the 20th floor of Seattle Municipal Tower at 700 Fifth Ave., (206) 233-5180.

Note: Historical research can be challenging because building code occupancies have changed significantly over time. C of O's were first required in Seattle in 1956. That means older buildings that have not changed occupancies will not have any C of O records at SDCI. In these cases, customers may need to initiate a new process with SDCI to have a C of O issued. For additional information about C of O's, call SDCI Inspection Services at (206) 684-8950. See also SDCI information sheet #120 on Obtaining a Certificate of Occupancy, stored here:

I'm Applying for a New Place of Assembly Permit - How Should I Submit the Certificate of Occupancy Document? A copy of the certificate should be submitted by email (preferred) to permits@seattle.gov along with your application materials. Permit applications are available on our website at <http://www.seattle.gov/fire/FMO/permits/permits.htm>.

Does the Seattle Fire Department Provide Assistance? Yes. Our permit team can provide general information about the permit application process and our compliance inspectors can provide more code-specific guidance if required. If you need help with a new place of assembly permit, please call our office at (206) 386-1450 and ask to speak with a member of the Permit Team or the Compliance Unit. Questions regarding Certificates of Occupancy are best directed to the Seattle Department of Construction and Inspections at (206) 684-8950 as they issue and maintain these records.
