On April 2, the Executive will brief the Public Safety, Civil Rights, and Technology Committee on its response to three Statements of Legislative Intent (SLI) approved by Council as part of the 2014 Budget. This memo provides a brief summary of these SLIs and related Council budget actions. It also includes background information on the Law Enforcement Assisted Diversion (LEAD) program and the City-run Multi-disciplinary Team (MDT). Both initiatives are intended to reduce downtown crime and street disorder through targeted outreach and social services to individuals, though they differ in their emphasis and approach. I have provided background on both of these efforts below.

The table on page 2 provides a brief recap of the SLIs and related budget actions. A SLI related to the Municipal Court’s “Community Court 2.0” is also included since a revamped community court is expected to contribute towards improved public safety downtown, but a response on this particular SLI is not due until July 2014.

Background Information on LEAD & MDT

LEAD

LEAD Program Description

LEAD is an arrest diversion pilot program that began operating in the Belltown neighborhood in 2012. It provides a mechanism for Seattle Police officers to refer individuals engaged in low level drug and prostitution offenses to an intensive social services intervention program in lieu of prosecution. The Public Defender’s Association’s (PDA) Racial Disparity Project is responsible for day-to-day program operations while policy is set by an oversight committee comprised of representatives from multiple agencies in Seattle and King County. Both the Mayor and City Council have seats on this oversight committee, which meets quarterly.

The City Council approved $830,000 in GSF support to enable LEAD to expand its program throughout the downtown area (see attached map indicating the proposed operating boundaries).

Theory of Change
LEAD program participants experience chronic issues with drugs, alcoholism, and mental health, which are often interrelated. The majority of LEAD participants to date have been referred for drug use. LEAD’s theory of change is based on a harm reduction strategy. Harm reduction focuses on reducing individual behavior considered harmful to the individual but it does not require the individual to stop the behavior altogether. LEAD’s Theory of Change further posits that if harm reduction strategies help a sufficient number of individuals, positive public safety impacts will be realized at the community level (see attached logic model). While LEAD is an arrest diversion program, LEAD participants are not immune from incurring subsequent charges for additional offenses.

Program Funding
Various private grants and foundations, including the Ford Foundation, have provided approximately $4 million in funding through 2015 for LEAD to operate in the Belltown neighborhood. The City Council approved $830,000 in funding for LEAD to expand geographically. The contract between the City (via HSD) and LEAD was only recently executed; thus, LEAD expansion activities are only just beginning.

Evaluation
The Arnold Foundation has provided additional funding to pay for an impact evaluation. The PDA has contracted with researchers from the University of Washington to conduct the evaluation. The PDA has also organized a client group to monitor this effort, which includes a representative from Council Central Staff. Preliminary evaluation findings are expected this fall.

Multi-disciplinary Team
MDT Program Description
Unlike LEAD, the MDT is a city-run initiative. The MDT is comprised of various department representatives, including the Seattle Police Department, Human Service Department, and City Attorney’s Office. The MDT also includes social service providers who work in the downtown area as well as case managers and outreach staff from the Downtown Seattle Association’s Metropolitan Improvement District (MID). The MDT is intended to employ a coordinated social service and law enforcement approach to address a range of problematic behaviors in the downtown area. The Executive anticipates approximately 150 people will be served in 2014 through MDT outreach efforts.

Council SLI and Executive response
During the 2014 budget review process, the City Council passed a SLI asking the Executive to develop detailed operational protocols for the MDT. The operational protocols were to include clearly delineated roles, responsibilities, and reporting relationships of MDT members and a description of the range of range of behaviors to be targeted for outreach and assistance. The Executive submitted a response to Council’s SLI on February 28th and this response is included in Council briefing materials.
Program Funding
The City Council approved $208,000 in GSF revenues to pay for any additional social services needed for the target population, beyond what is currently available through existing providers\(^1\). Council also set aside an additional $300,000 in Finance General should the MDT or LEAD require additional social service funding in 2014.

Evaluation
HSD intends to develop an evaluation plan to assess the impact of the MDT effort.

\(^1\) In the 2013-14 Budget, Council approved $133,000 for HSD to contract for case management and outreach workers and $150,000 for 2,307 of police overtime to supplement existing MID resources.

Prepared by: Seattle Police Department Crime Analysis Unit
Program Overview: LEAD’s goals are to improve public safety and public order in Belltown and Skyway and to reduce criminal behavior by the program’s participants. The program offers harm reduction-oriented, on-demand, comprehensive services and case management as an alternative to booking and prosecution to facilitate improvements in the lives, health, and opportunities of participants.

If we provide:

Law Enforcement Referrals
Individual Case Management
Peer Outreach and Counseling
Legal Advocacy
On-demand services (housing, treatment, education, job development and stipends)
Inclusion of neighborhood public safety leaders
Leadership Development Training

Participants will experience:

Individual case plans developed for 100% of participants
Connections made to legal services, employment, housing and transportation as needed
Case management meetings conducted
Peer counseling program established for all participants
Community advisory board meets monthly
Leadership training curriculum developed and implemented

Ultimately leading to:

Short-Term
Decreased criminal activity, especially other than drug use
Decreased harm to self and others from drug and alcohol use
Diversion savings
Increased psychological functioning
Improved physical health
Reduction in ER visits
Greater individual aspirations

Intermediate
Increased housing stability
Increased educational attainment
Increased job and community leadership opportunities
Increased involvement with families, community institutions and civic life
Decreased open-air drug dealing in Belltown and Skyway

Long-Term
Decreased recidivism rates
Decreased demand for social services in catchment area
Improved relationship between the police and those policed
Increased satisfaction of residential and business leaders with public safety
Public safety resources freed up for other uses

IMPACT

- Improved health, lives and opportunities of all residents of Belltown and Skyway communities
- Improved public safety and perceptions of public order
