The following interpretation, policy or code alternate is intended to provide guidance to staff for consistency of review and is subject to change without notice. Application of this interpretation, policy or code alternate to specific projects may vary.

Code Issue:

When does DPD require a licensed design professional to stamp plans where the value of non-structural alterations and repairs is less than $30,000?

Policy:

In most cases, DPD does not require a professional stamp for this type of project. However, if there are significant code issues, it is appropriate to have a seal and signatures on the plan

Examples of significant code issues include:

- Projects that trigger the substantial alteration provisions of the code
- Projects affecting the separation of mixed occupancies
- A change of occupancy to Group A, E, or H. (This does not include an update from previous code designations)
- Alterations affecting overall means of egress for a building
