Seattle City Light

Q. Are the energy and dollar savings claimed by manufacturers of compact fluorescent lightbulbs (CFLs) accurate?

A. Yes, although they might use a higher average electric rate to calculate the savings they claim. But even in Seattle with our lower-than-average rates, there are still significant energy and dollar savings. If you replace a single 60 watt incandescent bulb with a 15 watt CFL (which gives the same amount of light), you'll save $3.45* a year – not bad for a $1.00 investment. Studies show an average home in Seattle has 33 sockets which could be converted to CFLs – a potential savings of $114 a year!

And when you factor in a CFL's 5-7 year life, savings really add up. Quality has greatly improved, so take another look around your home and see where you might install more CFLs. Retailers listed on the reverse side participate in our Twist & Save discount program. Check them out for the lowest prices on a variety of CFLs.

Still not convinced? Call (206) 684-3800 and we'll send you a gift card for one FREE CFL at any Bartell Drugs store in Seattle City Light's service area.

* Assuming a 45 watt reduction with a 3 hour per day burn time and a City Light electric rate of $.07 per kilowatt hour.
