Putting people in jail, unless they are violent, is expensive, unnecessary and ineffective. Keeping track of people these days is quite easy and inexpensive. Also, if all the cities around King County need jails, does that mean we will have 20+ municipal jails scattered around. That sound just great! King County is just trying to balance their budgets. Work with them and the other cities to deal with this problem collectively not individually. Also, the four final site you have selected only one is viable. North Aurora Site is too close to residential and too far away from the courts; Interbay site is between Magnolia and Queen Anne hills. You really think these "special" populations are going to let you put it there? West Marginal Way site is almost all wetlands. That leaves only Myers Way Site. Nice of you to put up three straw men to justify Myers Way.
