The proposed siting of a new jail at either the Highland Park Way or Meyers Way location is troublesome for numerous reasons. Over the last several years the nearby neighborhoods of Highland Park, White Center and Riverview have been undergoing a tremendous amount of community involvement and economic investment of both public and private dollars. To have a jail sited so close to these struggling neighborhoods will send them backwards in time to a place that they are not deserved of. It is very disturbing to continue to see that the south end of the city is looked upon as a place to locate all the social ills that the city endures.

Do not bring a jail house into North Seattle. This area has worked hard at making it a safe, clean environment.

I would prefer not to have the jail located on Aurora. I think a more industrial neighborhood like Marginal Way South would be more suitable for the site. I have lived and worked in both areas.
