PARK(ING) DAY

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21ST 2012

BUILDING AND CELEBRATING PUBLIC SPACE SINCE 2005

 SDOT
Seattle Department of Transportation

9AM to 3PM (Setup and teardown must occur between these hours)

PARK(ing) Day happens every third Friday in September and is an opportunity for artists, activists, and community members to temporarily make parking spaces into parks. The event raises awareness about important issues like creating a walkable, livable, healthy city.

You can partner with Seattle Department of Transportation (SDOT) under one street use permit, or you can apply for your own. Entry deadline September 4, 2012. Learn how to do this at www.seattle.gov/transportation/seattleparkingday.htm.

PARK(ing) Day is an open-source experiment in spatial remixing created by independently-operated groups around the globe. Original PARK(ing) Day concept made in San Francisco by Rebar Art & Design.
