Seattle City Councilmembers

Dear Seattle City Councilmembers:

It is with the utmost humility and appreciation for the work done by the Seattle City Council, that I am seeking the opportunity to be appointed to the vacant seat on the council. My interest in the appointment stems from my desire to be an impactful member of the community and serve for the betterment of others. While my resume highlights my community involvement and professional experiences that have prepared me to serve, it is my story that has fueled my heart's desire to serve.

After multiple suspensions and near expulsions in school, I barely graduated high school. In my first year of college I was nearly kicked out as well. In the years since, I've been able to turn my life around to graduate from one of the best public policy programs in the country and serve my community in a number of capacities.

My knowledge of the public policy process is extensive as I've taught introductory political science at North Seattle and Seattle Central Colleges. Additionally, my current position as Director of Strategic Engagement for the University of Washington's Washington MESA (Mathematics, Engineering, Science Achievement) program, the state's largest STEM diversity educational pathway program, has allowed me to refine my skillset in understanding the intricacies of government. This past year, I led in partnership with the Washington State Board of Community & Technical Colleges and other public and private partners, an effort to expand of our community college program. As a result, six additional sites were secured during this past legislative session to expand our program from 12 to 18 sites across Washington State. This expansion will allow us to serve an additional 750 community college students from underrepresented communities (i.e.; women, African-American, American Native, Southeast Asian & Pacific Islander, & Latino) in the STEM pipeline. My budgetary responsibility is over $1.5 million and this past year, my team won the University of Washington's Team of the Year award.

In 2015 when Seattle transitioned to districts elections, I ran for the Seattle City Council District four seat as I believed then, like I do now, that Seattle needed a fresh voice to focus on the lives of young people, people of color, immigrant, and other marginalized communities as we continue to experience unprecedented growth. I ask for the support of the Seattle City Council to be a partner with all of you in ensuring we're making the best possible place to live, work. I'm confident in my ability to lead in the next two months and have the proven experiences to step up to the challenges addressing our city.

Sincerely,

Abel Pacheco

Seattle City Councilmembers

Dear Seattle City Councilmembers:

It is with the highest regard that I recommend Abel Pacheco to be appointed to the Seattle City Council. I met him during his first year of graduate school at the University of Washington's Evans School for Public Policy and Governance, and have since been impressed with his maturity, intellect, and heart to serve.

While I led The Seattle Foundation as President & CEO, Abel was one of our Summer Fellows working with the Vice President of Community Programs and myself. Abel provided research for our place-based approach to community impact and community engagement strategies. In this capacity, Abel demonstrated his intellect and ability to understand the complex issues that face our city and region. While he only spent the summer under my tutelage, my mentorship of him has continued and his commitment to our community has grown. He's been engaged with United Way's Emerging Leaders program since 2012 and continues to volunteer his time with a number of civic and community organizations.

As a three-term councilmember and former mayor, I know the skillset necessary to lead thoughtful discussions through the next two months as the city finalizes the budget, and addresses complex social and housing issues. Abel's professional and lived experiences, in addition to his graduate degree from one of the best public policy programs in the country, make him highly qualified to be the thoughtful leader the city needs during this time. I encourage your support of this incredible young man of color ready to serve our city.

Sincerely,

Norm Rice
49th Mayor of the City of Seattle

Dear Council President Bruce Harrell and Members of the Council:

10/1/2017

I am writing you today to express my support for the appointment of Abel Pacheco to the vacant seat on the Seattle City Council. I have had the pleasure of knowing Abel for several years and have walked away from every interaction completely impressed, inspired and encouraged. I do agree with the majority of the council that the appointed individual should act as a caretaker for the seat. However, I deeply believe that we must walk the talk and give young people of color whom are respected leaders in our community a shot to represent our community. With the amount of candidates running for Mayor this year we have seen a clear desire for new ideas and a fresh approach – this would require us to be bold and appoint a new face to the City Council.

Abel has been serving on the King County Office of Law Enforcement Oversight Committee for the past year. In this role he has worked with both law enforcement and the general public to continue the work of bridge building and positive reinforcement. This is a critical issue in Seattle and King County as we strive to have positive relationships between the police department and the constituents they serve. It is also a role and voice that should be filled by a person of color and will bring a unique perspective to the council.

Additionally, Abel has been hard at work at the University of Washington accelerating through his career as an up and coming leader. He has been working to develop public/private partnerships for the state's largest STEM diversity program. In this role he has been focused on bringing more women and students of color into STEM fields. This is critical in supporting marginalized communities and ensuring they have equal access and opportunity into 21st century jobs and making our new economy work for everyone.

As a young man of color, a higher education employee and a public servant I believe Abel has a powerful story to tell. From his humble upbringing to navigating a complex, diverse and vibrant Seattle including overcoming the many challenges and obstacles he has faced – I believe his voice is needed on the City Council. We often talk about bringing young people to the table, bringing communities of color to the table, bringing renters to the table, bringing the community to the table – we now truly have that opportunity. I hope you will take full advantage of that opportunity by voting to support Abel Pacheco to fill the vacancy on the Seattle City Council.

Thank you for your time, consideration and everything you do for our community.

Very Respectfully Yours,

Bailey Stober, Chair
