THE MIXER FEBRUARY: REAL TALK ABOUT MAKING IT IN THE CREATIVE INDUSTRIES WITH JOHN RODERICK

Join us this month at KEXP with singer/songwriter/guitarist/podcaster John Roderick for a timely discussion on making a living in the creative industries. As Seattle continues to grow and change, Roderick will give his input from years of filling different roles as a creative industry professional, with time for a Q&A to follow. This month's event is all-ages and will take place at KEXP at Seattle Center, 5-7pm.

THE MAN BEHIND KEXP'S AVANT-GARDE SHOWCASE SONARCHY IS RETIRING

Doug Haire, sound engineer and the man behind KEXP's Sonarchy, is retiring after 22 years of broadcasting his weekly radio show. After Haire announced he was ending his show, The Stranger compiled reactions from more than a dozen local musicians, who heaped praise from the scene's vibrant outer reaches. "Doug Haire and his show Sonarchy was a real treasure for the Seattle area," wrote Garek Druss, who performed on "Sonarchy" several times. "Weirdos don't get too many options to play live on the radio." His last show airs at midnight on Feb. 26.
