February 27, 2017

Number 7

The City of Seattle is committed to being a safe, vibrant, interconnected, and affordable city for all.

Week Overview

Week seven concluded with the house of origin fiscal cutoff on February 24th. Bills that have a financial impact had to be voted out of their respective fiscal committees (e.g., House Finance, House Appropriations, House and Senate Transportation, and Senate Ways & Means) by February 24th. Despite the lengthy hearings and numerous executive sessions, many bills that had cleared their policy committees were never scheduled in a fiscal committee and therefore are now dead. However, any bill deemed necessary to implement the budget (NTIB) is exempt from deadlines. Additionally, “dead” bills can be brought back to life through procedural maneuvers and creative amendments onto other bills moving through the process.

Priority Areas

Education

Education Funding Plans: SSB 5607, the Senate Republican’s education funding plan, sponsored by Sen. Under the proposal, current local levies would be made permanent and collected through the State which would then distribute the money to the school district. The plan also adds additional funding for the levy equalization program, which aims to help “property-poor” districts. A proposed substitute is scheduled for public hearing in the Senate Way and Means Committee on February 27th.

Both bills also contain policy aimed at funding new training techniques, like de-escalation practices, distribution of less-lethal weapons, and data collection on use of force incidents. SSB 5073 received executive action on February 16th, in the Senate Law & Justice Committee where it was amended to add intent language that states it is necessary for law enforcement to build trust in the diverse communities they serve. Affordable Care Act: SB 1523, which requires health plans to cover preventive services with no cost sharing, was placed on 2nd Reading by the House Rules Committee and is awaiting floor action. The bill is intended to serve as a backstop to protect this key provision of the ACA and put it into state statute in the event the federal law is repealed. The bill has been referred to the Rules committee. The companion bill, SB 5602, was never scheduled for a hearing and is now dead.

A draft of the U.S. House Republican reconciliation bill for repeal of the ACA was released this week. The draft bill repeals large portions of the ACA including Medicaid expansion and the penalty for not having the required health insurance under the individual mandate. It also eliminates Medicaid expansion by 2020, shifts payments for Medicaid to block grants, puts in place a penalty for having a lapse in coverage, shifts subsidies from being income based to being age-based, provides funding to states for high risk pools, allows states to determine the “essential health benefits”, prohibits funding to Planned Parenthood and abortion providers, changes the age band, and repeals the tax provisions under the ACA.

There was some fairly significant federal regulatory activity relating to the ACA. New rules were proposed by the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services that relate to several provisions of the ACA. The Trump administration and the new U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Tom Price say the rules will help stabilize troubled individual insurance markets. The proposed rule would do several things including shortening the open enrollment period for the 2018 coverage year by six weeks, requiring proof of eligibility for a special enrollment period before being able to enroll, allowing carriers to refuse coverage to an individual who has missed premium payments within the past year until they make those payments, and removing the network adequacy requirements under the ACA and instead allowing states to determine network adequacy. In addition, the proposal also lowers minimum coverage requirements for plans under the ACA. This in turn will likely result in the subsidies for premium assistance lowering. Health advocates have been critical of the proposed rules saying they weaken many important consumer protections of the ACA. The public comment period on these proposed rules is open until March 7, 2017.

The IRS also announced a change relating to the ACA. Starting this year the IRS was planning to start rejecting tax returns during processing that don't provide the requested information whether they had health coverage in the past year. Citing the Jan 20, 2017 Executive Order instructing agencies to provide relief from the ACA, the IRS has said they will not be implementing the rejection of tax returns without that information. This does not have any direct effect on the individual mandate itself. It just allows electronic and paper returns to be accepted for processing even if the taxpayer doesn't indicate their coverage status.
