Dear City Clerk of Seattle and Seattle City Council,

Looking back throughout my resume, helping other people has always been the focus of any type of work I have partaken in. While currently living in and having been raised in the Chinatown International District, watching its residents continue to be plagued by issues has provided me with motivation to contribute towards the community. Now that the opportunity has presented itself, my first-hand experience with some of the most prominent issues within this community and those around it might be able to provide an understanding on how to solve them.

From volunteering in food banks to helping prepare setups for science classes to making sensors for hospitals and lab research, my years of experience within both academia and industry has potential to provide solutions that are both practical and scientific. Handling the production of sensors for RJC enterprises, an original equipment manufacturer that supplies for fiber optic systems and assemblies, was a responsibility that challenged me to grow as a service worker. Many of the sensors that have been fabricated by me have been sold to buyers working on their own technology, providing me with a satisfaction knowing that I was able to help towards development in other areas.

Any opportunity for further communication, to help provide leadership within District Two of Seattle, would be greatly welcomed. Any efforts made to consider such a letter is also very much appreciated because opportunities like this don't often appear. To be able to contribute towards Seattle's history and development is a task that truly excites me and is taken with great honor, as it provides the means to make the kind of impact that can benefit the many.

Sincerely and respectfully,

Henry Armas-Amaya
