Section 1. Address & Contact

1a. Address

Street Address

Unit or Apartment Number (if any)

1b. Household Representative Contact

Your household needs to designate a household member to apply, manage correspondence, and receive payment if relocation assistance is issued. That person is called the “Household Representative.” This person can only represent one household.

What is a household?

A household is often a group of related people such as a parent and children. Some examples of households include:

- Single individuals
- Married couple or domestic partners
- Parent(s) with children
- Extended families that include parents, grandparents, grandchildren, and siblings.

Your housing unit (house or apartment) may have more than one household living in the unit. Some examples of how households may live in housing units include:

- A house that has 5 bedrooms, each occupied by unrelated adults (5 households)
- An apartment where a parent and child live (1 household)
- A house where a family sublets a room to an unrelated friend (2 households)
- An apartment where 6 people live, each as part of a couple in a domestic partnership (3 households)
- An apartment where grandparents are raising their grandchildren and there are 2 unrelated roommates (3 households).

Some factors you may consider in identifying what constitutes your household are shared finances, domestic relationship between the parties, an intention to move out together, etc. Although there may be more than 1 household in the housing unit, each individual in the housing unit may only be a member of 1 household.

If you have questions about how to define your household, please call us at 206-684-5700 for guidance before submitting your application.

There could be more than 1 housing unit within a single dwelling if the space is rented under separate rental agreements (for example, if 4 unrelated college students live together in a house under 4 separate rental agreements, this would be considered 4 housing units).

For the purpose of this application, please report the rent for the housing unit covered by your rental agreement.
